General Information about the Theatres

The play is being performed at the A.R.T./New York Theatres. The Theatres are located on 53rd Street between 10th and 11th Avenues.

The outside of the A.R.T./New York Theatres looks like this.

This is the entrance to the A.R.T./New York Theatres. You will walk through these two sets of glass doors to enter the building.

If you need the doors opened for you, press the blue button to the right of the glass doors. Both sets of doors will open after pushing this button. It looks like this.

When you walk through the doors, you will be in the ground floor lobby. It can get quite busy before the show when everyone is arriving. The TV in the lobby will have information about the play being performed as well as directions to the theaters in the building. A greeter may also be in the lobby to welcome you and answer any questions you may have. The lobby looks like this. →

There are two theatres in the building: one flight up from the lobby is the Mezzanine Theatre, and two flights up from the lobby is the Jeffrey and Paula Gural Theatre. To find out which theatre your play is in, you can look at the TV in the lobby.

To reach either theater, you may take the elevator or the stairs. The stairs will be straight in front of you along the red wall when you walk into the lobby. The elevator is immediately to your left when you walk into the lobby. It looks like this. →

At the far end of the hallway, there is a neon sign on the wall. To the right of the neon sign, there are two gender neutral restrooms. A gender neutral restroom is one that any person may use, no matter what their gender is. One restroom has 6 stalls, and the other has 1 stall and 2 urinals. Next to the restrooms are 2 water fountains. The restroom area looks like this.

The Jeffrey and Paula Gural Theatre

The Jeffrey and Paula Gural Theatre is on the third floor. You may take the elevator or the stairs to the third floor. If you take the elevator, press the number 3 for the Jeffrey and Paula Gural Theatre. The stairs from the second floor to the third floor look like this.

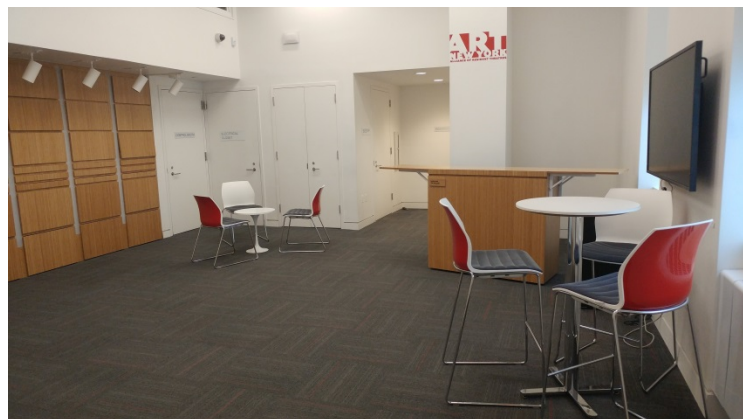

The entrance to the Jeffrey & Paula Gural Theatre looks like this. If you are coming from the stairs, this entrance will be on your left. If you are coming from the elevator, this entrance will be in front of you.

There is a small waiting area in front of the Jeffrey & Paula Gural Theatre.

There are chairs here that you may sit in. This area may be crowded before the show while people wait to enter the theatre. The waiting area looks like this.

On the far side of the waiting area, there are 2 gender neutral restrooms you may use. Each restroom is fully private and contains 1 toilet. The restroom area looks like this.

Other Things to Know

If you need to leave a theatre at any time, there are two chill-out areas that you may visit. The hallway outside of the Mezzanine Theatre, and the waiting area outside of the Jeffrey & Paula Gural Theatre are both chill-out areas.

You should not go into the Mezzanine or Jeffrey & Paula Gural Theatres until they are ready. When the theatres are ready, the doors to the theatres will be open.

Some areas of the A.R.T./New York Theatres may look a little bit different from the pictures in this packet. Each show decorates the spaces differently.
